Builder John Lober of Provence Homes is no stranger to award-winning work. He's been honored throughout the years for his floor plans and craftsmanship, and was recently selected to be a part of Fuzzyfotos KC, a fundraising event that benefits No More Homeless Pets KC and the Kansas City Free Health Clinic. Kansas City-area residents are invited to vote on pictures of notable Kansas Citians and their pets. Votes cost $5 each and all proceeds benefit the aforementioned charities. Voting ends at midnight Monday. More information is available at www.FuzzyfotosKC.com.

Lober has built homes in communities throughout Kansas City. Doug Owens and his family have lived in their John Lober home for two years, and Owens said he continues to be pleased with the level of customer service and quality he's experienced.

"John and his staff have been very professional and responsive with all of the questions and concerns I've had," Owens said. "I would absolutely recommend him to anyone."

Lober owns Provence Homes and builds homes in upper-scale communities throughout the metropolitan area. Lober's homes include European influences, decorative finishings and open, carefully designed floor plans that maximize each interior's space.

"While looking at homes, I noticed several things in John's work that stood out: the attention to detail, color scheme and the generous size of the master suite," Owens said. "One of my favorite features in our home is the open floor plan of the kitchen and family room – it fits our lifestyle well. He builds the perfect home for active families."

Prospective homeowners can tour furnished models in Waterford, Fountain Hills and The National, priced from the $260,000s to $1.8 million.

Lober's reputation as a dedicated and philanthropic builder continues to spread throughout the city.

"One of the things I hear most often about John is his quality construction," Owens said. "I have not spoken to anyone who hasn't spoken positively about him."
