Jim Thomas and Shawn Gordon stumbled across a Provence Homes residence and, after touring the model home, knew they had found a homebuilder.

"We started our home search in February, but weren't drawn to anything in particular," Gordon said. "After seeing a Provence Homes model, however, we knew that we wanted our next home built by Provence."

Their decision was quickly reinforced after meeting with Provence Homes' owner John Lober.

"After meeting with John, we knew we had the right builder and that our homebuilding process would be smooth and efficient," Thomas said. "We cannot say enough great things about the professionalism we encountered while dealing with Provence Homes."

Thomas and Gordon, engaged to be married, have been living in their home for several months, and said it's the perfect retreat for their family.

"The quality and craftsmanship of our home is unparalleled when compared to other homes in our neighborhood," Gordon said. "We would highly recommend John Lober and Provence Homes to anyone beginning the exciting process of looking for a home or builder."

Provence Homes' signature European-style homes are available in upper-scale communities throughout the Northland, including The National, where Lober offers homes priced up to $1.6 million. Prospective homeowners can select from a library of distinctive floor plans and Lober builds in a variety of price ranges from the mid-$200,000s.

In addition, Lober's passion to help local causes has earned him a reputation as one of Kansas City's most philanthropic builders. Since his recent involvement in FuzzyFotos KC to help raise money for No More Homeless Pets KC and the Kansas City Free Health Clinic, Lober has turned his attention to promoting the 2006 Building Awareness Designer Show Home.

This year marks the fourth year for this event, which will showcase a Designer Show Home in Loch Lloyd, built by Timberstone Development Inc. to raise awareness and give hope to anyone touched by cancer. Lober's Provence Homes built show homes for the first two years of the event and Lober continues to support the efforts of all builders involved with the Touched by Cancer Foundation.

Anyone wishing to contact John Lober can call (816) 520-0105, and anyone newly diagnosed with cancer can receive a complimentary copy of Bigger than Pink, a book written by Lober's wife, Lori, detailing her journey with cancer. For more information, contact the Touched By Cancer Foundation at (816) 505-0400.
